¹1995 was the first year that a reference group of EM residency-eligible, first-time test takers was used to construct the written certification examination, now known as the qualifying examination.

²Number indicates the percent of the total that passed.

³Candidates do not include former diplomates attempting to regain certification through the qualifying and/or oral examination.

⁴The 2020 Oral Certification Examination administrations were canceled due to the COVID pandemic. The December 2020 administration counts are included in the 2021 counts.

¹Number indicates the percent of the total who passed.

Statistics are reported by calendar year. The statistics accurately reflect the examinations administered during the designated periods, and all examination data are included. Candidates who took more than one examination are included more than once.

Total number of active ABEM-certified physicians on 12/31/2024 was 47,936; an additional 185 certified physicians held retired status.
